

1. This line is to show that my nose is slightly off centre and the surgeon hopes to correct this when doing the surgery

2. This line shows that my front two teeth aren't in line with my nose

3. This line is my top jaw where it is slanting to one side. The surgeon hopes to lift this up and move to my right. This will give me 'nicer' cheekbones and will make my front two teeth more centred.

4. This line is my bottom jaw. This slant is significantly worse. The surgeon will be levelling and 'rotating' this to align this up

5. Where the '5' is on this picture is the centre of my chin so you can see how far off centre this is!

6. This line is my pronounced jaw that they think is either still growing or had a growth spurt! This is still being investigated.
